Latest Quotations in the Portland Markets.

Complete Market Reports Corrected Each Day Giving the Wholesale Prices of Commodities, Farm Produce and Vegetables.

Portland, Sept. 20.—Considerable stale butter is now on the market, as the result of holding fancy creamery too long for high prices.

"Stale butter is used by bakeries and cheap restaurants," one of these dealers said today, "and we have got to get rid of it at some price, after having kept it too long to sell as fresh creamery. We let it go at 50c a roll, or even less, rather than have it spoil altogether on our hands. The presence of large quantities of eastern fresh has a weakening effect on the butter market, but we do not feel justified yet in reducing prices of northwest fancy creamery butter to meet the competition of importations from Nebraska and Illinois."

Pickle manufacturers aver that the output of pickles will be very light in Oregon this season, on account of the poor crop of cucumbers. The dry summer and fall is blamed for the shortage of apples as well, and so the vinegar product is going to be poor also.

Chickens continued to sell well today at 1 1/2c higher than last week's quotations. A good many coops were received by the various commission firms, but no one complained of a dull market.

According to the Waterville Times, an authority on hops, the entire yield of the world in 1905 is to be 2,738,000 cwt., against 1,522,000 cwt., in 1904. Breweries of the world are all in need of hops, as they declined to purchase any more than for immediate use at the high prices that ruled last season. According to these figures there will be nearly 30 per cent more hops raised this year than last.

Millers are willing to pay more for wheat than exporters are, and today's quotations are based upon what the flour manufacturers offer, which is 70c for Walla Walla, 73c for bluestem, and 67c for red. Valley wheat is quoted at 72c by exporters and millers. Little buying is reported, as farmers are disposed to hold a while yet.
